Comments: Hello -

I am writing to ask the Forest Service NOT to change their policy on ANILCA cabins.

Cabins don't belong in designated Wilderness. The U.S. Forest Service must leave its policy unchanged and phase out ANILCA cabins, as was the original intent. These cabins were never meant to persist in Wilderness, and to change this policy would undermine ANILCA and the Wilderness Act.

Wildlife is already under extreme stress due to habitat loss, deforestation, climate change, and hunting. Nature has a right to exist and should be given the respect and right to life without human encroachment.

Thank you for your consideration.
