Comments: Why are Anlica cabins in what little wildnerness is left? They don't belong; our wildlife does. The US Forest Service needs to leave its policy alone and get rid of these cabins. don't belong in designated Wilderness. The U.S. Forest Service must leave its policy unchanged and phase out ANILCA cabins as was the original intent. These cabins were never meant to persist in Wilderness, and to change this policy would undermine ANILCA and the Wilderness Act.
