Comments: The rules on the ANLICA cabins should not be changed. The residential leases should be allowed to expire, as the original rules stated.

Wilderness is not wilderness with domestic cabins located inside. Wilderness is for nature to evolve as it would without interference. Humans have upset the balance of nature for far too long, and this is one, small opportunity to halt that.

I urge the Forest Service to follow the Wilderness Act. Let these leases expire and the cabins fall into ruin. No heavy machinery to demolish them, either.
