Comments: Unauthorized cabins constructed on federal lands don't belong in designated Wilderness. It's time to phase out all ANILCA cabins. These cabins were never meant to persist in Wilderness and must not be allowed to exist ad infinitum. Permits created by the U.S. Forest Service have a definite time-limit and that must not be changed. The U.S. Forest Service must leave its policy unchanged and phase out ANILCA cabins, as was the original intent.
