

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 3/8/2024 7:25:42 PM

First name: Tollie

Last name: Bohl

Organization:

Title:

Comments: As our natural lands belong to all and none of us, individual cabins don't belong in designated Wilderness. The U.S. Forest Service must leave its policy unchanged and phase out ANILCA cabins, as was the original intent. These cabins were never meant to persist in Wilderness, and to change this policy would undermine ANILCA and the Wilderness Act.