

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 3/8/2024 7:34:12 PM

First name: Thomas

Last name: Esposito

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Having cabins in designated Wilderness areas is antithetical to the intent of them being Wilderness in the first place. The U.S. Forest Service should and must leave its policy unchanged, phasing out the ANILCA cabins as was the original intent. These cabins were never meant to remain in Wilderness, and to change this policy would be harmful to ANILCA and to the Wilderness Act.