Comments: The original agreements should be honored, then when they end, that is the end. No extensions, additions, let the wilderness be as it was before settlers arrived. That is the point of wilderness. The people that have had these places in their family's were very lucky, it have known for awhile that this would end. Times up. No extensions, sales or plans to keep going. Wilderness is wilderness, so no cabins, permits, permanent residents, or land ownership.
