

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 3/8/2024 7:54:44 PM

First name: Celeste

Last name: Wolf

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Due to the permafrost thawing in Alaska and the expansion of fossil fuels in the Arctic, it's time to preserve Alaska for its citizens, indigenous communities, and wildlife.

Cabins don't belong in designated Wilderness. The U.S. Forest Service must leave its policy unchanged and phase out ANILCA cabins, as was the original intent. These cabins were never meant to persist in Wilderness, and to change this policy would undermine ANILCA and the Wilderness Act.