

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 3/8/2024 8:15:45 PM

First name: Jay

Last name: Jones

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Humans have eliminated much of the terrestrial vegetation of the earth. 97% of the tall grass prairie is gone. The tropical rain forests are shrinking fast. Economic forces and our own desires to be close to remnant nature whittle away at the few remaining relatively undisturbed areas. Cabins need access, perhaps fuel to heat and other resources. In the slow growing taiga even modest consumption can leave a big impact. Please phase out ANILCA cabins and leave the policies unchanged as the Wilderness Act prescribes. You have an awesome and important responsibility to preserve the precious remaining wilderness.