As an avid hiker, I am writing in support of wilderness areas. I strongly believe cabins don't belong in designated Wilderness.

As I understand it, these cabins were supposed to be phased out gradually.

The U.S. Forest Service must leave its policy unchanged and phase out ANILCA cabins, as was the original intent. These cabins were never meant to persist in Wilderness, and to change this policy would undermine ANILCA and the Wilderness Act.

I appreciate your consideration of these comments in your decision making.
