Comments: This comment is about the proposed policy change for ANILCA Cabins in Wilderness designated areas. The current policy is consistent with Wilderness usage: each cabin will be terminated when the last family member of the original holder is deceased. Cabins are not compatible with Wilderness areas, so the current policy strikes a balance and the cabins will eventually be eliminated without harm to families that currently have claims on them. Please leave the policy as it is now written.

If your new proposed policy is adopted, there will continue to be cabins in these Wilderness areas forever. That would be inconsistent with the definition of the Wilderness designation.
