Comments: I grew up spending summers in an ANILCA cabin which my dad built. It has been a part of our family (and the next generations of his partners) for over 50 years. We value the opportunity we have been given and respect the natural beauty and resources around it. Regular visits back to the cabin with friends and family brings money into the local economy in the form of kayak rentals, flight charters, motel stays in town, and food and supplies. Allowing the transfer of the lease to the next generation would continue this for the community with no downside to the general public or the wilderness we are so fortunate to be a part of. Thank you.
