Comments: To Whom It May Concern,

The Plant Biological Assessment notes that a new RFSS list is due to be shared in early 2024. May I see that new list, please? I cannot find it online, although the search did consume some of the limited time I have available. I wonder why this project seems to be rushing ahead when release of a new, vital document is imminent. I am also concerned that many of the references listed in the assessment are more than 20 years old. When combined with an expired Environmental Assessment on Non-Native Invasive Plant Control, again with outdated and incomplete information, it seems we do not know all that much about the plant species we have in the forest.

Thank you.
