Comments: Logging disrupts and disturbs any attempts to stop the double crisis of climate change and biodiversity loss. The forest ecology is a complex natural system that for millions of years has provided the planet with clean air, clean water, healthy soils, carbon sequestration, biological diversity, the water cycle/weather stability and more. It is an untruth to say that logging does anything to help the planet and its inhabitant, except maybe for providing jobs for a small percentage of citizens who can be trained in other much more helpful jobs to support the natural systems instead of destroy them. As members of the public, we do NOT want my public lands destroyed using false arguments and false solutions for climate change and biodiversity. Thank you.
