Comments: The fact that we are still discussing logging and cutting down mature trees/forests in the wake of a climate crisis, is nothing less than troubling. There are no words that speak louder than New England and the US as a whole is in dire need of ALL the forests that are left! New Englanders deserve the clean air that comes with keeping those forests intact, we deserve to keep away the destructive floods, we deserve to maintain the wildlife and have those areas kept intact, pure, authentic and wild for those countless nature lovers that walk those trails. We owe the protection of all the above to our children. Because ultimately, it doesn't belong to anyone and we do not have the right to make such decisions. If we want to fight all the above, it is imperative to let those forests grow old and be on the right side of history.
