Comments: I feel fungi needs to be protected like all our natural life. Fungi is sincere participant in the health and thriving life of the forest and world in general. Without it our world would be quite different, in fact would our world be at all? Fungi is a huge part of human health as well as the health of our natural world. It has symbiotic relationships with all life that surrounds it giving and receiving nutrients that each need.

Though we know more about fungi than we ever had, there is so much more to learn. If we do not protect it we may loose the option of learning the endless jobs that fungi does, it's vast healing potentials, the miraculous ways it turns some toxic substances into something safe for life. This is our chance to honor, respect and learn from the kingdom of Fungi. Thank you for considering.
