Comments: As a skier, climber, and snowmobiler, I believe that placing huts in the wilderness on snowmobile trails that aren't for snowmobiles will create a large safety issue from there being people that aren't aware of the other groups in the back country. Another issue I see is skiers not being understanding of the motor noise of snowmobiles. Now the biggest issue is putting privately owned property on public lands is a complete disgrace too the community. Now maybe an alternative is putting two huts for each group. Publicly owned a set up to reserve similar to the Canadian but system.
