Comments: I live in the canyon, just 1/10 of a mile from the end of the pavement on Highway 165. Being well aware of the terrible condition of the forest on the north side of Sandia Mountain, the prospect of a burn to address this terrifies me. Seems that the only acceptable treatment would be hand thinning, especially given the Forest Service's record of managing prescribed burns. Dead and down fuel could be cut and stacked along the road, allowing Placitans to carry it off for firewood.
