Comments: Wow, "reservable overnighting facilities operated by three private commercial entities" is exceedingly vague about who gets to use the facilities. Would these facilities be publicly accessible for a fee on a nightly basis, or only for groups paying for a guide service? What is the economic bar set for entry and what portion of the public does that exclude?

I feel like if you're going to allow any kind of development on public land it should be publicly accessible. The way I understood it last time was that the huts were going to be for private guided groups. I don't want more access for the rich pay to play crowd at the expense of any portion of the public trust. Cheap public huts like in Canada... maybe.

I say vote 'no'.
