Comments: Thank you for accepting public comments. I hope additional focus will take place on camper education. Outfitters are not consistent in ensuring that campers really understand the rules or even common sense practices such as not cutting down green trees for firewood and not stacking rocks. Another area of damage which is not currently getting caught is the damage of winter campers. Last but not least, while education is being considered, more needs to be done to help fishermen from bringing in invasive flora - such as crayfish or 'rock snot'.
