Comments: Additional information should be conveyed to the public to better understand the potential impacts of the proposed Huts for public use, how to resolve possible user group conflicts, environmental impact, and general usability and practicality. Example questions for each of the aforementioned categories are provided. If questions such as those below have been considered, then responses should be provided to the public, or the public directed to such resources if they exist. If questions such as those below have not been considered, then it is strongly encouraged that they are before final decision-making.

Environmental Impacts: What will the environmental impact of these huts be? Will the Twin Sisters hut require cutting old-growth to install? How will human waste and water be managed?

Public Use: Will any of the huts be available for unguided use or self-access by the public? If so, what portion of time/space will be allotted for public use? Are there cost estimates for users?

User Group Conflicts: What measures will be put in place to prevent conflicts between user groups? Two of the huts will be placed next to snowmobile trails and accessed from sno-parks with limited parking. Snowmobilers are the primary funding source to groom and maintain these roads in winter.

Usability and Practicality: The Heliotrope hut has little terrain for safe storm-day skiing, which may lead it to be underutilized in our wet and wild winters.
