Comments: I support more alpine infrastructure in Washington. Huts allow for more usage possibilities. Washington is comparably underdeveloped in this respect vs. other regions.

This project should take specific measures to not reduce usage opportunities for existing user groups.

All for-profit use should include a significant levy that would go towards maintaining or improving the access for current user groups. This includes improving roads and parking.

Backcountry huts provide a very special wilderness experience. Hopefully Washington can figure out how to responsibly build this infrastructure.
