Comments: ...one of the issues for the BWCA, people who stay at a site/paddle a mile/paddle to a lake and then stay for a week, etc. While I understand the value, this has an effect of other paddlers fearful of not finding a site and not moving each day/or ever other day...Thus, people hang onto sites/do the day paddles to other spots...but cling to a lake/which eliminates more paddles from routes that cover reasonable trips/puts a lot of pressure on entry point/or near entry point lakes/with many lakes sites left open as people become fearful of not finding sites beyond the next portages...the traveling thru paddles/especially in the summer doesn't happen as often...
