Comments: I lived in Teton County WY through the devastating Yellowstone fires. I am not naive about what fire does. I now live in the Methow Valley, along the Twisp River.

I believe that the Midnight logging plan does not see far enough into the consequences of logging, and that this is not the most financially appropriate nor practical way to reduce the severity of future wildfires. It's time to consider treating forest management the way the indigenous people did, with appropriate fires to the understory in appropriate seasons. Massive logging projects are not the way in my opinion.

thank you for considering other options.
