Comments: I had a chance to see this beautiful part of Colorado. The pristine beauty of this small lake is rarely seen by many people. I loved the fact that people were enjoying the beauty, after driving 10 miles on a dirt road still amazes me.

Just reading all the management plan, I had to imagine that all the beauty of this small lake was going to be destroyed.

There are several small old buildings that will be destroyed, along with the minimal amount of parking that is there to be replaced by mega-units.

Why in the state of Colorado can we not find a larger lake with easy access, in Polis' plan to develop more State Parks?

A 10 mile dirt drive will surely present problems for the residents and the visitors.

I hope this plan will be reconsidered.
