Comments: protect quiet winter recreation and wintering wildlife on the Rio Grande. OSV use is bad for wildlife and negatively affects other users over large distances. OSV has such an impact via that they often aren't aware of (indirectly). But their noise ruins the experience of others, their fumes can lingers long after they have left in a calm day, and in a very short time period they can affect more snow more quickly than many more non-motorized users could affect over days or weeks.
