Comments: It's imperative that the Forest Service adheres to the Forest Plan and provides a clear plan of how they intend to maintain the 7,400 acres of habitat required by Cerulean Warblers in the Jellico's. These habitats are essential for the survival and well-being of these species, and it's critical that they are preserved and protected. We must protect Kentucky's natural assets. Plus it is careless to make a 49 year contract when it stated clearly to only be 10-15 years then be revised. Clear cutting is an irresponsible practice in itself.
