Comments: These widespread clear-cutting projects need to be stopped or at least regulated better. Huge paper and logging companies have already bought up just about everything that's not a part of the Daniel Boone National Forest. They're completely erasing the natural beauty, biological diversity, and the heritage of the people who call this area home. When does it stop? Now, they're moving onto our public-land to take the rest of it. When they finish, we're left with barren hills, damaging runoff, and overgrown thickets with scrubby growth that a rabbit can barley get through. I am strongly against this project period!!!
