Comments: My preference is alternative 2. I fear that erosion issues will be a hazard. I am also worried about taking away animal habitats. This will cause an influx of animals searching for new homes, which could also pose a threat to humans and livestock. If the goal is to monetize the lumber, why not make money on tourism instead, and allow for ATV/UTV/horse trails rather than destroy the landscape? I feel that the least amount of clear cutting possible is best for our region.
