

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 5/21/2024 4:00:00 AM

First name: Sarah

Last name: Moss

Organization:

Title:

Comments: This is a no-brainer to me. You can restore grouse and woodcock habitat with selective cutting. Clearcutting is not necessary. I am from CT originally so I understand the area. Grouse live along forest edges and in some of the toughest brush I have ever seen in the woods. Selective cutting will restore some of the low grass and vegetation grouse and woodcock need while maintaining forest other species need to survive as well.