Comments: Greetings,

I long for a time when we don't have to beg to leave old growth trees alone. Humankind has harvested, killed, dismantled countless acres of forest. We know that - and what good has come of it? I have recently become a grandmother, perhaps one of you reading understands how that really puts the dear Earth's future into zoom mode. Please leave old growth forest alone for all the reasons you know of: balances the rain, soil, oxygen, habitat and simply deserves to finish the life it deserves. A forest is a part of the living earth.

I would appreciate you reconsidering the typical ugly approach to logging as well. When I think of what this part of the country looked like - covered in virgin timber, I wish I could see it. Please let it grow so that my granddaughter can one day walk among the huge trees.

Thank you - a citizen, Sandra Hodges
