Comments: What a disgusting disgrace that this abomination has progressed to this point. All for the profit of people who live outside the Unites States , doing it ourselves would also be a betrayal of our way of life here in the desert southwest, but these mean outsiders, interlopers who wish to rape our beautiful area, make it even worse. This is not the time or the place, I also have lived long enough to know that these things are a slippery slope, let them in and the next band of profiteers will use it against us, being able to say, "well, you already let these others do it...", also the resistance to future projects will dwindle, as we the people will be shown to be powerless over our own collective destiny. NO to this embarrassing display of naked greed. We do not have the water, after all we know droughts will be in the future regardless. I say we save the water for our agriculture, wildlife, and to maintain our current way of life. The tragedy that would be inflicted on our wildlife is too painful to consider. I can only hope that compassion and common sense will prevail.
