Comments: The use of motorized vehicles in the winter months in national forest areas creates tremendous obstacles for wildlife habitat and wildlife survival. The noise created by these vehicles is incredibly disturbing to all species, and creates an environment in which animals must escape or avoid people who are in pursuit of recreation. Disturbing burrows and hibernation ... sacrificing the well being of the animals in order to bring vehicles into every accessible area, just for fun. I do not trust the drivers of these vehicles to be aware of and respect wildlife. It's not what they are there for.
