Comments: Historic utilization averaged 24 visitors per day based on previously submitted water study requirements. (before the place was "shutdown") Max utilization on record was less than 200 during summer events (ie. wedding, etc.). The state required the site to have fewer than 60 users per day to not be required to become a "public water system." The number of 250 visitors is completely unacceptable for the traffic, community, road conditions and ecosystem. This location has been a gem for users for years, not just locals. Tear down the old cabins, make some adjustments to the campgrounds, or just clean them up as they've been neglected for years, tear down the "lodge" and leave this place as primitive as possible. No need to house 10+ state employees who will add traffic to the road.
