Comments: I have no comment on whether or not the Sabino Visitor Center should be updated, improved, reconstructed, etc. That's up to others to decide.

When the plan is implemented, however, and in whatever form, the entire parking lot should be roofed over with solar panels. The roof of the actual visitor center should be covered with solar panels as well. Not installing solar panels over the parking lot and roof would be a complete disregard and waste of a readily-available resource.

There should also be serious consideration given to building a parking garage - perhaps just two or three levels - to increase the parking capacity at Sabino Canyon without ripping out any more desert vegetation. Of course, solar panels should cover the top level of any such parking structure.
