Comments: While I'm a fan of the parts of the proposed plan that indicate using only "disturbed" locations, I hope that you're also considering the impact that the drastically increased traffic will have on the area. The number of people visiting will likely skyrocket and I hope that you don't find in 20 years that you didn't prepare for those numbers. Westminster recently had a similar conundrum where one of the open spaces was much more popular than anticipated and the increased traffic was detrimental to a lot of the native flora and fauna. Had there been planning for that much traffic from the beginning I think the impacts could have been mitigated before the issues got so bad.
