Comments: Would you please reconsider the original plan in order to work more closely with the naturalists who are not financially motivated by the project? In the long run it may be worth the extra time and expense as a pristine wilderness lures more recreational activity. Plus, these naturalists are quite quirky and can be great to work with if you take time to view the project from their perspective. I think we all have a lot of common ground and want to both preserve nature and make it accessible for more to enjoy.
