Comments: With highly popular natural features such as Hanging Lake and Conundrum Hot Springs justifiably requiring permits to enter, it becomes ever more desirable to open additional areas to the public, and Sweetwater Lake is one. The dilemma is that easier, less expensive access is too often accompanied by people (especially, younger ones) who are more interested in loud "partying" (sometimes accompanied by littering) than in enjoying a natural setting and allowing others to do so.

So, some ideas to control this:

1. Limit watercraft to non-motorized.
2. Prohibit loud radio playing
3. Phase-in physical improvements, and cut back on expansion plans if substantial degradation occurs.
4. Enforce the rules.
