Comments: Of the three options presented, I feel that option 1 is the best choice. While there is a problem with litter and exploding target etc, I believe options 2 and 3 are far too restrictive and infringe upon responsible gun ownership.

However that being said, I do believe we can do more to expand on option 1 keeping most of the forest land open to shooting. I believe that permits should be required, and they should mandate sharing of before and after pictures of the shooting ranges set up that show those shooting have picked up their mess. If each person/group would pick up extra items beyond their own, the areas will improve. Implement some sort of fine system for failing to properly photographically document areas which were used for target shooting. We could follow the concept of hunting licenses where we have to show that we follow basic gun safety and proper outdoorsmanship.
