

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 8/27/2024 6:33:31 PM

First name: Brad

Last name: Bodle

Organization:

Title:

Comments: By protecting and not logging/thinning our old growth forests we will do nothing but promote bigger and more out of control wild fires. We need proper forest management on all of our nations forests for a many reasons. Several being keeping what little milling and logging infrastructure we have left in place, helping reduce the risk of wild fires, and making healthier forests for generations to come. We talk about climate change, well the only way to sequester more carbon is to cut the old trees that are no longer growing to give the younger still growing trees the opportunity to sequester carbon. By not cutting "old growth" forests and taking them out of production will be detrimental to our forest industry in our rural communities. We need to keep the bureaucracy out of forest management and do what makes sense. Manage our national forests so that they don't keep managing us during fire season!!!!