Comments: I believe that a healthy forest must include a balanced approach with conservation and utilizing the natural resources that the forest can provide. Restricting the efficient harvesting of forest products by bogging down the application process through endless reviews and legal red tape hurts the forest and the economy that depends on it. I believe that we can all agree that more government involvement is rarely the right approach. We currently have a complete review process and I don't believe adding more layers is going to help the situation.
