

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 8/28/2024 1:13:15 AM

First name: Jerry

Last name: Ross

Organization:

Title:

Comments: I'm not a forest biologist, but I've been in the forest plenty of times over the past 55 years. I can see the issues from bad management. 1st the spotted owl hoax to letting the environmentalists sue and stop sound logging. Even after a fire. The forest service quit replanting trees in Northeastern CA. where I lived the past 30 years. Now the brush just takes over and we have no new forests after fires. We have plenty of old growth in our wildernesses, and national and state parks. We need to log and thin our forests to keep them healthy. This nonsense of no logging has ruined our national forests and all these catastrophic wildfires we've had the past several years prove it.