

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 8/29/2024 6:12:15 PM

First name: Jon

Last name: Van Houten

Organization: Forest Products Dist.

Title:

Comments: I know a few things about logging/forestry and fires. I understand the views of people that wish to "save" this section or "protect" this animal but I implore you not to fall into that trap that California and many many others have fallen into. If you just keep the current programs where people on both sides, Loggers/Government, make logical calculated decisions on Forest clearing/cleaning, and healthy forest management, you can avoid massive fires that decimate ENTIRE eco systems, not to mention any human developments that are in the path of this merciless destructive events. California listened to the "spare all trees" people, and there are huge sections where there are NO trees, no animals, no bugs, no houses, and no humans. Firefighters need forest management to get to and control these conflagrations, and I pray we are advanced enough as a civilization to realize that.