Comments: Hello- I see a need for more information regarding this proposal. There is confusing information here that does not state the Boundary Waters will remain as it currently stands today, but rather that mining and logging can occur. My question is will the Boundary Waters stay as it is or will it be quietly and secretly destroyed for "economic gain?" The Boundary Waters has turned into a major argument due to a disastrous mining company wanting to mine the area...preservation of this area is vital. There are very few if any fresh water areas left in the United States. This area flows into multiple water tributaries flowing both north and south. Destruction of this region will impact all water flowing north into the Hudson Bay and ocean and south down to the Gulf of Mexico. There is no turning back once destroyed. Rather than the language here discussing this proposal, give truthful information that is understandable.
