Comments: I object to the Stibnite Gold mine.
The damage this mine could cause to the ecosystem and Salmon River watershed is not worth the economic benefit. The Salmon River watershed is one of the last few wild river systems left in the United States. If this mine goes in, water quality could be significantly altered downstream. This is too much of a risk. A large corporation would benefit from this mine and take its earnings outside of central Idaho, leaving the local area damaged and depleted. Idaho is known for its pristine wilderness and this mine could ruin that while bringing very little economic benefit to the local people. Please do not allow this mine to go in.
