Comments: I recently saw that Stibnite was approved and is moving forward. This mine is near a gigantic mercury deposit and will 100% expose the Salmon River to arsenic. The amount of chemicals that will be put into the water system is unknown. There's not a lot to say that hasn't been said over the past 10 years of this approval process. All I can say is I hope you, the reader, feel comfortable with the decision that has been made. If this ends up as a disaster, your grandchildren will know that you were associated with the approval of this thing. If that's something you can stand behind, then it must be worth it.
