Comments: Dear Mr Hanson,

I gather that the metal quonset hut in Mt Timpanogos wilderness area is scheduled to be revamped. A metal shelter seems odd for any backpacker to use (I would not), but to have one in designated wilderness seems wrong to me. Perhaps it is used by horse packers? I would certainly avoid taking shelter in it during an electrical storm! Might I suggest that you use the appropriated budget that is slated to renovate the shelter to instead disassemble it and remove the superstructure from the site and wilderness area. It really has no historical value unlike, say, an early fire tower.

many thanks, jim
