Comments: Just let it go!

The hut is a pre-existing structure that's an anachronism in the present wilderness.

It should be allowed to break down, like an old miner's cabin. Or be hauled out manually, by pack animals.

Building a new structure is not what a wilderness area is all about. No structures are needed in a wilderness. Structure construction isn't in the Wilderness Act of 1964.

Bring a tent on your back!
