

Data Submitted (UTC 11): 9/10/2024 4:00:00 AM

First name: Braxton

Last name: Rivers

Organization:

Title:

Comments: Old growth forests are a very important part of a thriving ecosystem, they are self supporting, carbon sinks, and irreplaceable. The ecological loss that comes when logging an old growth forest is devastating and something that can't be brought back just by replanting trees. An old growth forest takes hundreds of years to become what it is and that should not be stripped away for a company to make a profit