Comments: Please stop logging old growth trees. We've lost enough due to fires, which are getting more numerous and spread faster each time. Old growth trees are an absolute necessity to keep our forests alive. Keep cutting them down, and not only will you have no more trees left to cut down, as temperatures make it harder for younger trees to survive, not including the impact of future fires, but without these trees, you're only worsening climate collapse.

Instead of cutting them down, we should be protecting them, and encouraging me growth on top of that by protecting even more land from all human operations, including cattle grazing.

Thank you
